Dear Luke,

Thanks for your postcard about life in the U.K. Here are some facts about me and my friends here in the U.S.

A _____

Most of my friends listen to rock, rap, and hip-hop. We hate pop music! We all have CD players, but 75% of my friends usually download music from the net. We sometimes make CDs for each other. I usually get two or three CDs a week from my friends. My friends like Jay-Z, the Black Eyed Peas, and Beyoncé. In my class, everyone likes the Jonas Brothers. They're from New Jersey. My friend Ben loves Miley Cyrus. She sings pop songs (but good pop songs!).

B _____

We all love football. We play it, we watch it, we talk about it. Only about 5% of my friends go to games because the tickets are expensive! But everyone watches games on TV, especially the Super Bowl. There's a big park near our school, and we often play sports there after school—basketball, baseball, and football, of course! We sometimes go swimming at the local swimming pool on the weekends.

C _____

Most people go to the movies once a week. My friends like Matt Damon (the Bourne films), Ben Stiller, Robert Pattinson, Kristen Stewart, and Taylor Lautner. About 50% of the class like teen movies. All my friends rent DVDs once a month or more, and we often have movie parties on Saturday nights.

See you soon here in the U.S.!

A SHOCKING EXPERIENCE

Lightning usually strikes tall objects or metal. It also strikes about 2,500 people every year. A lot of those people, approximately 94%, survive their 100-million-volt experience. These are the stories of two lucky lightning survivors.

Steve Marshburn was working in an office. He was near a metal window when lightning struck it. The lightning also struck Steve. He wasn't touching the window, but he had a metal object in his hand. His colleagues were looking at him, but they didn't want to touch him because they were frightened.

Arnold Hanson, another victim, was walking in a field when lightning struck him. It lifted him 45cm in the air. His twelve-year-old son, Dale, saw the incident and helped Arnold.

The victims of lightning often have problems after their experience. Steve and Arnold can't remember things, and they find it difficult to sleep. Other victims never feel cold. Their advice? Don't stand near tall objects or metal, and don't walk or play sports in a storm!

- a) Lightning sometimes strikes people. _____
- b) Lightning can move objects. _____
- d) People usually don't survive when lightning strikes them. _____
- e) People feel normal after lightning strikes them. _____
